WHEREAS, in 2015, the Philippine Statistics Authority revealed that the poverty rate in Bacoor City is 4.9%:

WHEREAS, poverty is directly correlated with hunger and malnutrition, which can have detrimental effects on health and the local economy. This is evidenced by the following studies:

1. World Bank's research conducted by Alderman, H., & Behrman, J. R. (2006) titled "Reducing the Incidence of Low Birth Weight in Low-income Countries Has Substantial Economic Benefits", which emphasizes the negative impact of malnutrition on cognitive development, health, and productivity;
2. Haddad, L., Alderman, H., Appleton, S., Song, L., & Yohannes, Y.'s Study (2003) titled "Reducing Child Malnutrition: How Far Does Income Growth Take Us?", published in the World Bank Economic Review, indicating that economic growth alone cannot sufficiently reduce child malnutrition, thus emphasizing the need for targeted interventions;
3. Gundersen, C., & Ziliak, J. P.'s Study (2015) titled "Food Insecurity and Health Outcomes", published in Health Affairs, which establishes the correlation between food insecurity and negative health outcomes, leading to increased healthcare costs and reduced productivity, ultimately affecting the local economy.

WHEREAS, there is an urgency in addressing the negative effects of inflation on the ability of vulnerable groups to afford food, as emphasized in the research by Brinkman et al. (2010) in The Journal of Nutrition, highlighting the impact of rising food prices on the nutritional status and health of vulnerable populations, further supported by the study of Ivancic & Martin (2014) in the World Bank Policy Research Working Paper Series, demonstrating the significant influence of food price fluctuations on poverty rates, particularly for low-income households, and the study by Mejean et al. (2013) in Public Health Nutrition, which elucidates the connection between food prices, food choices, and negative health outcomes, thereby emphasizing the need for immediate interventions to ensure food affordability for vulnerable groups;

WHEREAS, the Farm-to-Food Pack project will distribute almost six million pesos worth of food to vulnerable populations;
